DETAILED ACTION

Response to Amendment

1. The declaration filed on 11/02/2007 under 37 CFR 1.131 has been considered but is ineffective to overcome the Kondo et al reference.

The evidence submitted is insufficient to establish diligence from a date prior to the date of reduction to practice of the Kondo et al reference to either a constructive reduction to practice or an actual reduction to practice. Although, redacted exhibit A (?) shoes that Ken Addy conceived the invention before the filing date of the Kondo et al reference., there is no showing of due diligence. There is no clearly labeled exhibits A, or B or C. Further more it appears that only question 4 (a) is answered (redacted) but other questions are either answered "No" or "n/a". It is requested that the applicant provides clear labeled exhibits and positively proof of due diligence.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

3. Claims 1-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(anticipated) as being anticipated by Kondo et al (US 2004/0155963).

Kondo et al discloses an information processing system comprising the same security system comprising:

a plurality of battery operated security video cameras (paragraphs 0010 and 0109 and fig. 2, el. 28), each having an RF receiver (paragraph 0111) and operating in a standby inactive video mode, providing a low electrical power consumption, or in an active video recording mode that consumes a greater amount of electrical power (paragraph 0107);

a plurality of security sensors for detecting a security/alarm event, each having an RF transmitter for transmitting an RF security/alarm event message indicating detection of a security/alarm event (fig. 2, el. 23-24);

wherein an alarm event detected by a security sensor of the security system causes the security sensor to transmit an RF security/alarm event message which causes the security system video cameras to awaken from the standby inactive video mode into the active video recording mode (fig. 5, el. 103, fig. 6, S4-S5-S6-...) as specified in claims 1 and 11; wherein each security video camera awakens from the standby inactive video mode into the active video recording mode for a predetermined period of time (paragraphs 0104 and 0124 and 0131-0134) as specified in claims 2 and 12; wherein each security video camera is awakened from the standby inactive video mode into the active video recording mode by a security/alarm event message received from a security sensor (fig. 5, el. 101-102-103, fig. 6, S4-S5-S6-...) as specified in claims 3 and 13; wherein each security video camera is always switched from the standby inactive video mode to the active video recording mode by an RF security/alarm event message from a security sensor (fig. 5, el. 101-102-103, fig. 6, S4-S5-S6-... and paragraph 0111) as specified in claims 4 and 14; wherein the security system includes a security system control panel which has an armed state in which the security system is armed and a disarmed state in which the security system is disarmed, and the security system control panel sends an RF enable message, enabling each security video camera to be awakened from the standby inactive video mode into the active video recording mode by a security/alarm event message received from a security sensor, if the security system control panel is in an armed state (paragraph 0120: processing starts when the user gives an instruction to start monitoring a monitoring are = armed state) as specified in claims 5 and 15; wherein the security system includes a security system control panel which has an armed state in which the security system is armed and a disarmed state in which the security system is disarmed, and the security system control panel sends an RF disable message, disabling each security video camera from being awakened from the standby inactive video mode into the active video recording mode by a security/alarm event message received from a security sensor, if the security system control panel is in a disarmed state (paragraph 0120: processing will not starts when the user does not give an instruction to start monitoring a monitoring are = disarmed state) as specified in claims 6 and 16; wherein the security system includes a security system control panel which receives the RF security/alarm event message, and the security system control panel sends an RF awaken message to the security video cameras to cause the security system video cameras to awaken from the standby inactive video mode into the active video recording mode (fig. 2, el. 25) as specified in claims 7 and 17; wherein the security system control panel has an armed state in which the security system is armed and a disarmed state in which the security system is disarmed, and the security system control panel sends an RF awaken message to the security video cameras if the security system control panel is in an armed state and does not send the RF awaken message to the security video cameras if the security system control panel is in a disarmed state (paragraph 0120: processing starts when the user gives an instruction to start monitoring a monitoring area = armed state and when the user does not give an instruction to start monitoring, nothing will happen) as specified in claims 8 and 18; wherein each security video camera includes a video storage buffer memory local to the security video camera (fig. 2, el. 21, 25) as specified in claims 9 and 19; and wherein the security system includes a remote video storage memory remote to each security video camera, and upon activation each video security camera transmits video data to the remote video storage memory (paragraph 0198) as specified in claims 10 and 20;
